

Cezanne and Mont Sainte-Victoire

by Vickie Sekits

Mont Sainte-Victoire, popular with artists and tourists alike, is a mountain near Aix-en-Provence in France, and the primary subject of this lesson. It was a frequent inspiration for the 19th century Post-Impressionist painter Paul Cezanne. By learning how to reduce the complexities of the landscape into simple geometric shapes and colors, students will gain an appreciation for Cezanne's unique style and vision. They will learn about using gouache paint and study Cezanne's unique paintstroke method.
